Specialty Contractor Global Environmental Solutions Launches New Website

Wednesday, July 08, 2009

South Portland, Maine - Global Environmental Solutions (GES), a specialty contractor offering a Maine-based contracting option for wind energy projects, announced the launch of a new website today built by Hall Web Services of Portland, Maine. Found at <http://www.globalenvironmental.com>, the new site highlights the company's focus on the Maine economy and their targeted line of services. Visitors to the site can also learn about the latest news from GES, see their network of partner companies, and contact GES online.

"Global Environmental Solutions wanted a website that showed off the skills of their company to a very specialized market," said Fred Greenhalgh, Internet Marketing Manager at Hall. "The site does this by featuring photos of their work, focusing on the specialized contracting services they offer, and by providing contact information prominently with language encouraging web visitors to take the next step."

Global Environmental Solutions plans to add a contractor database to the website shortly after its launch, which will allow contractors who wish to work with the company to submit an application online. Once listed, GES will be able to search this database against different criteria to help match up skilled contractors with appropriate work in their area.

With a website that is easy to use and informative, Global Environmental Solutions looks forward to continuing to help the Maine economy by offering specialized contracting services. Learn more at <http://www.globalenvironmental.com>.
